

I am a vascular surgeon that also practises renal transplantation. I have been the lead for vascular access in Glasgow for 10 years, and during this time we have driven to understand the processes of vascular access creation and maintenance based on clinical outcomes and patient need. We have an active research department that has ranged from cellular signalling to small animal studies to randomised trials.