

Kristine Paule is a clinical teacher for Fresenius Medical Care for the UK. She has worked in renal since qualifying as a registered nurse in 2008, with her passion and work dedication focused in haemodialysis and vascular access. She became an access nurse specialist in 2011 and had the opportunity to train as a surgical care practitioner in renal access with vascular and transplant surgeons. She gained vast surgical experience in pre-operative care, intra-operative care and as a surgeons's first assistant. She's an experienced clinical nurse specialist for vascular access who also designed care pathways for access patients, autonomously facilitated follow-up clinics and providing training and education to junior colleagues. As a previous VASBI nurse network lead she has achieved her goal to work closely with other dialysis access specialist members in the UK and worked with other members of VASBI & BRS special interest groups to launch national projects that focused in haemodialysis access.